

MEET HUNTER

Hunter is battling Charcot-Marie-Tooth Disease Type 4B3. A life threatening, rare progressive neuromuscular disease, similar to Muscular Dystrophy and ALS.

Children with CMT4B3 lose the ability to walk, the use of their hands, their sight and/or hearing. The disease can compromise a child's breathing, leading to premature death.

WHAT WE DO

We are racing against time to develop a treatment to stop the progression of this disease and ultimately find a cure.

We are at a transformative moment where scientific advances are being turned into therapies that are changing the course of rare genetic diseases.

We assembled a world renowned scientific network and partnered with the National Institute of Health to research CMT4B3. We have initiated 11 research projects, 8 of which we are solely funding.
